

E-learning developer

E-learning developers create course materials that can be studied on a computer network or online.

Average salary (a year)

£19,000

£40,000

Starter

Experienced

Typical hours (a week)

37 to 39
a week

You could work

evenings
occasionally

Different routes to get this job

(check the website for entry requirements)

- a university course
- a college course
- an apprenticeship
- working towards this role

Skills and knowledge

You'll need:

- knowledge of teaching and the ability to design courses
- knowledge of English language
- the ability to create the best conditions for learning or teaching new things
- the ability to use your initiative
- the ability to work well with others
- to be flexible and open to change
- customer service skills
- to be thorough and pay attention to detail
- to be able to use a computer and the main software packages competently

Day-to-day tasks

In this role you could:

- build and maintain online training areas known as virtual learning environments (VLEs)
- adapt off-the-shelf VLE products
- talk with users to find out about their training needs
- work with tutors, trainers or development teams to create online learning materials
- create interactive multimedia like video clips
- modify content for use on other platforms, like mobile phones or tablets
- make sure security measures are in place to control access
- stay up to date with the latest design methods and technologies

Regularly check Teams channel "Careers advice for students"

COMMITTED TO EXCELLENCE

NURTURING INDIVIDUALS

RESPECTING OUR COMMUNITY

FULFILLING POTENTIAL